

$4 MILLION FOR NONFARM HOMES

ABOUT THIS AND ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

Starving Children

Starving children attract the interest of the humanitarian. Starving children also attract the racketeer as well as the soft-hearted and inexperienced. These thoughts pop up as the result of the multitude of appeals for "starving children" in Europe. You will readily agree as I will agree, that starvation anywhere in this world is an indictment of the intelligence of the race.

With a highly fertile earth, with strong men and women over a large part of the earth's surface, with, presumably, trained intelligence, we still have the appeal for starving people. Mugglers are responsible, of course. Political mugglers. Economic mugglers. And just plain mugglers. The last class includes most of us, since if we followed a standard of intelligent thinking worthy of our supposed advanced stage of civilization, there would be enough good-thinking, well-informed people to stabilize national and international economy and quickly put to right misfortunes even of wars.

Take Advantage

It has been so always: there are some who seek disaster opportunity to make their own living. How many of the so-called benefactors and benefactresses actually have their efforts founded in charity? No one knows, of course. But it should be known how much administrative help costs to distribute our governmental help to Europe. Both are worthy, if handled right. And somebody should see to that.

A Sound Road to Travel

There is one sound economic road to travel. Actually, it is the only road that will prove successful in preserving peace (if that can be done) and providing full measure of prosperity over the entire world for a long, long time. China's pitiful condition suggests the value of the equalized wage plan throughout the world for world prosperity. Mexico's condition likewise proves it. Look at the Latin countries and look at most European countries. There you see the frightfulness of our unbalanced economic systems. We cannot unashamedly proclaim our faith in democracy while we employ methods throughout the world that permit hunger and disease and death from hunger.

Leadership Needed

It's time that leadership developed for revamping the economy of the country and the world. The world is shrinking. Too many of our own people over many years were taught that the government owed everybody a living. Other economic foolishness in other countries have promised the same thing. Millions look to other sources than themselves for maintenance. Some time, as our nations grow closer and closer together, the underdog who has remained that way because of lack of initiative will arise in mass and plunge the world into revolution. They'll be wrong, of course, but their destructive operations will be none the less final because of their wrongness.

Plenty Will Help

Let mankind exchange its products freely throughout the world, at a fair and equal wage for producers, for workers, and there will be a glow of joy in opportunity that may have sufficient power to lift the whole race up to educational heights far above the sordidness that now makes millions mean in their minds.

A band selection was played, Lincoln Estates Boy Scouts lowered the flag to half-mast as Matteson Girl Scouts placed a wreath on the honor roll. Then followed the unveiling and dedication of the new clock.

IN MEMORIAM

SEMMLER — WILLIAM. In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away two years ago, June 8.

The rolling stream of life rolls on;
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of one who once sat there.
Beyond the sunset he has gone,
Still memories linger on.

WIFE AND CHILDREN

MOKENA WOMAN CELEBRATES 90TH BIRTHDAY

To be 90 years old these days, and in good health, is quite an achievement and truly can be called a blessing. Such is the case of Mrs. Theresa Suszycki, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Mattes, in Mokena.

Friends and neighbors gathered with her family Friday, June 4, and helped Mrs. Suszycki celebrate her 90th birthday in a quiet, friendly way. She received many cards, telegrams, flowers, candy, and gifts, adding much happiness.

Mrs. Suszycki, the former Miss Theresa Haberle, was born June 4, 1858, at Valpariso, Ind. She was married to Anton Suszycki and they made their home near Valpariso on a farm where they lived until retiring from farming when they moved to Mauston, Wis.

There it was on August 22, 1922, that they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Suszycki passed away the next year. In 1942 Mrs. Suszycki came to Mokena and has made her home since with her daughter, Mrs. Mattes. She is in very good health and does much crocheting, knitting, and has made quilts for her children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, great-great-grandchildren and for many other people.

Present at the celebration last Friday were her daughters, Mrs. Mattes and Mrs. Albert Braun of Mokena; Mrs. Clara Kent, Chicago; and her son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John Suszycki of Reedburg, Wis. Other children are two sons, Anton of Mauston and William of Los Angeles, Calif.; nine grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

TILE COUNCIL SAYS HUGE AMOUNT TO BE SPENT IN WILL COUNTY

Strasberg-De Gard

The Earl Strasberg home on Haven avenue, New Lenox was the scene of a very pretty wedding Saturday afternoon, June 5 at 4 o'clock when their youngest daughter, Neoma was married to Lavern DeGard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis DeGard, 569 Cass street Joliet.

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Rev. Ralph L. Miller, pastor of the Methodist church of New Lenox.

Musical selections were presented by Miss Doris Jaitner of Chicago, friend of the bride who played Mendelssohn's wedding march and "Because."

The improvised altar was beautifully decorated with baskets of pink and white peonies; gladiola, and palms.

A large white wedding bell with pink streamers was suspended from the ceiling under which the young couple spoke their wedding vows.

The bride was attractive in a light peach-colored tailored suit of wool gabardine with a net blouse to match, and wore an orchid corsage and her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

The bridesmaid, a former schoolmate of the bride, was Mrs. Gene Balbinot who wore a tan-colored gabardine two-piece suit and a pastel blue carnation corsage. Mr. Balbinot served the groom as best man.

Mrs. Strasberg, mother of the bride wore a grey sheer print dress with pink accessories and a pink gladiola corsage, while the groom's mother wore a navy blue and white print crepe dress and a pink gladiola corsage.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Norman Roth, wore a lavender crepe dress trimmed in cream lace and a corsage of white gladiola.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held and refreshments were served buffet style from a large table covered with a lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake that was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Pink candles in crystal holders decorated either end of the table.

Miss Erma Strasberg, sister of the bride, served the wedding cake while Miss Mary Theresa Sherwood presided at the punch bowl. They both wore white carnation corsages. Miss Doris Jaitner, who had charge of the guest book, also wore a white carnation corsage.

The newlyweds left on a short wedding trip and upon their return will reside with the bride's parents.

The bride, who attended JTHS is employed at the Frank Weber Insurance Brokerage Co., in Chicago. The groom also attended JTHS and is employed at the EJ&E railroad.

Expenditures To Be Made During 1948

An estimated $4,233,000 will be spent in repairing and modernizing nonfarm homes in Will county during 1948, according to a report just released by the Tile Council of America.

That sum will be expended largely on painting, repairs to heating equipment, new roofs; and plumbing; the report disclosed. "Greater availability of building materials will make possible a record amount of home improvement throughout the nation this year," declared Malcolm Schweiker, chairman of the council's residential construction committee.

About 30 of every 100 homes in Illinois will be painted, either inside or out during 1948 and 11 will have heating equipment overhauled or replaced, according to the report. Nine will be re-roofed and eight will have plumbing repaired, bathrooms tiled, or showers installed, the report revealed.

"To meet demands for materials for both new homes and home repairs, production has been stepped up in practically every type of material," said Mr. Schweiker. The output of ceramic tile for bathrooms and kitchens, for instance, is now at the highest rate in history, government reports show.

Throughout the nation between two billion six hundred million and three billion three hundred million will be spent this year on home repair, according to the Tile Council report. This is believed the largest amount ever expended for such work in a similar time space.

The mother of the bride wore a brown crepe dress, and the groom's mother wore navy blue and the groom's grandmother was gowned in black, each wearing a corsage of white carnations.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents for 45 guests.

Plans were made for the annual field-day trip which will start at the B. W. Brankey home at 1 o'clock

HENRY FINDS A TAX MARK ON EVERY STEP, MORNING TO NIGHT

SPRINGFIELD—Who pays taxes?

A day in the life of Henry Everyman is described in the May issue of "Tax Outlook" published by Tax Foundation and adapted to Illinois by the Research Department of the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois.

Henry Everyman reaches out at 7 a. m. of a bright May morning to turn off the alarm clock (price: $5 plus $1.10 tax). Accompanied by the trebling of birds, he climbs wearily out of bed (price: $195 plus $3.90 sales tax plus personal property tax), walks across the floor of his $8,000 house (annual general property tax $220), and switches on the electricity (33c tax on his $10 monthly bill) which lights the bulb (price: 20c plus 1c federal tax plus 1c sales tax).

To music from a bedroom radio (price: $30 plus $3.60 tax), Henry shaves. As a radio newscaster reports that Henry's local taxes have reached new peaks, Henry slaps across his jaws a handful of bay rum (price: $1.30 plus 24c tax).

He dresses quickly, hurriedly fastening cuff links (price: $3.50 plus 77c tax), and tie clasp (price: $1.50 plus 33c tax), puts on his Swiss wrist watch (price: $60 plus $13.20 tax not counting customs duty), and rushes downstairs. Tucked under one arm is a leather brief case (price: $18 plus $3.96 tax) which carries papers from his real estate office, including one deed (property valued at $3,000; stamp tax, $3.30).

In the kitchen, he's just in time to snatch two slices of bread from the electric toaster (price: $16 plus $3.52 tax), lift his coffee from the gas stove (price: $190 plus $22.80 tax), and grab a glass of fruit juice from the refrigerator (price: $300 plus $36 tax).

A glance out of the window shows it's raining, so he calls to his wife (marriage license, $1) to telephone (monthly bill: $12 plus $2.05 tax) for a taxi. Too many other people want taxis on a wet morning so Henry gets out his own car (price: $1,800 plus $105 federal tax plus $36 tax plus state license of $10.50 plus city wheel tax plus tax of 5c on each pound of a new tire plus tax of 5 per cent on each new part or accessory plus state and Federal gasoline tax of 4 1-2c per gallon) and drives (operator's license: 50c) to the railroad station.

Henry relaxes at the station with a cigarette (price per pack: 9c plus 10c Federal and state tax), lit by a match (tax: 5 1-2c per 1,000). Aboard the train Henry gives the conductor his ticket (price: 85c plus 13c tax), and settles down to a hand of bridge with three cronies, using of course, a deck of cards (price: 40c plus 14c tax).

In the city on his way to the office, Henry stops to buy a roll of camera film (price: 20c plus 6c tax) that he promised his son (birth registration: $1), and the lipstick (price: $1 plus 22c tax) he promised his wife. Because there are friends coming to his house in the evening, he buys a bottle of whiskey (price: $2.30 plus $2.60 federal tax).

Arriving eventually at the office, Henry sighs (no tax) and settles to a sity of Illinois and State Natural History Survey.

County farm advisers reported that 64 per cent of the farms and 484 Illinois towns and villages will be going all-out to rid their areas of flies. About one-half of the towns in the state are making an organized effort to control flies. Another one-fourth, while not declaring open warfare against the fly hordes, will be gunning for flies. The remaining one-fourth have reported no fly control activity so far.

"The survey shows a definite enthusiasm for the fly control program," the entomologist stated. "While we are over the hump in organization of the program, there is much work left to be done."

The time is ripe to launch the spraying phase of the control program, he said. Hand and power sprayers can be used to spread fly-killing DDT.

Fly Control Moves Ahead

At least two-thirds of Illinois' 204,000 farms will be treated for fly control this year, according to a preliminary county survey conducted by H. B. Petty, entomologist with the Univer-

Who is this Man?

Now and then, in the pages of the Clarion, I run a biographical quiz, under the heading of "Who Is This Man?" For instance . . .

"He was one of the earliest lowers in American history . . .

"And yet he was too shy to court
a woman outright . . .

"He came to the New World on the Mayflower . . .

"A cooper to repair the beer barrels accompanying the Pilgrims . . .

"Who is this man?"

Sure, it was hot last summer. . . and it's going to be hot again this year. More than two months of over 85° temperatures are in store for this area . . . and you! You can plan now to beat the heat - install a night cooling fan in your house or apartment.

Even the hottest days are bearable when you've had a good night's sleep. In a night cooled home, the hot, stifling air that keeps you tossing for hours is drawn out of the rooms. . . and replaced by cool, refreshing night air from outside. This gently moving air makes you feel cooler. . . lets you sleep in comfort. . . and lowers the temperature of the rooms.

Don't wait for the hot weather to get here. Find out about this new way to summer sleeping comfort.

WEAVERS OF ANTIQUITY OUTDONE AS INVENTION SPURS ANCIENT ART

Gary, Ind.—More than 11,526,000-000 linear yards of cloth were woven in the United States during 1946, the last full year for which accurate statistics are yet available.

A 9x12 living-room rug is made on a modern American loom in just 60 minutes!

Yet it is only in the last century that wool, cotton, rayon and related broad-woven fabrics have become available to the masses of people throughout the world at a cost within their easy reach, according to National Patent Council. It is only within the last century that invention, inspired by the Patent System, has created the automatic machines that make it all possible—and has created a vital industry providing jobs for over a million men and women, adding greatly to the wealth of the Nation.

Anthropologists agree that clothmaking is antedated by the intertwining of saplings or sticks with pliable vines to form fish weirs, and the interlacing of twigs to make baskets. Then there was developed the one-bar loom, a mere pole from which hung strings weighted at the ends with stones.

While the weavers of Asia and Europe were highly skilled artisans, their work was done laboriously by hand. Their product was only for the very rich. From the beginning of spinning and weaving, individual workers plied their skill alone in family groups. Certain American Indians continue that practice to this day.

The spinning wheel of the 14th Century, the fly shuttle of the early 18th Century and the steam loom of Edmund Cartwright in 1785 provided the first real impetus to weaving. But it required the inventive ability of many early Americans, the skill of many others in the late 19th Century, to give the world today its present textile industry.

Great electrically driven looms today work automatically, so delicately adjusted that the instant one warp yarn breaks the loom stops until the broken thread is repaired.

Developed under the protection of the Patent System, yet America's textile industry today is highly competitive with nearly 6,500 manufacturers, in the field. They provide jobs for more than a million persons and pay out in wages more than a billion dollars annually. Patents make jobs!

Woman's World

Charming Toddler's Clothing Can Be Made From Cast-Offs

By Ertta Haley

"Do you really think that adult's clothing can be made over into really wearable things for youngsters? There's something so pathetic about seeing a little girl in something that so obviously was her mother's," said a woman to me one day.

Of course, there are makeovers and makeovers. If a woman simply cuts down her dress for daughter or Dad's trousers for son and leaves grown-up lines and features in them, she has not done the kind of remodeling job that I talk about.

Now the process of ripping a garment apart, adding new material that properly contrasts with the remnant you have, and using a pattern typically a child's fashion, may seem like a lot of work, but truly, that is the only way clothing can be made. You can't re-use heavy padding or the same necklines for children's clothes. You're lost before you start.

However, if you have usable material and are willing to treat it to a pattern, styled for the youngster, and sew on it as though you bought fresh yard goods, then saving and satisfaction are yours.

This is not like altering a few things in a dress for you; it actually is sewing a new garment.

It seems wrong to many women simply to let outmoded garments lie in a trunk or closet; how much more satisfaction to clear out remnants and sew something both attractive, and fitting.

How To Use

Hand-Me-Downs

Do you want to make some dresses for a little girl? Check the following sources for material in your own home: Old, outmoded or torn dresses with some salvable material; men's shirts with some back or front and sleeves in good condition; cotton bags that can be dyed; table or bed linen.

Now select a proper pattern and see if the material available will be enough for the pattern. If not, decide how you can use a suitable contrasting material.

If you have print, select one of the colors and see if you can obtain a solid color in that to use for the yolk and sleeves of the dress. Or if you have a solid, select a print that goes well with it.

Should only a little material be lacking, see if that yardage can be made up with eyelet, or organdie from perhaps something you already have at home.

Little girl's dresses usually require less than two yards of material, easily obtained from the salvageable material from the above sources.

Dad's blue chambray or print shirts make attractive pinafores, especially when trimmed with lace, eyelet or organdie. Or use them for a jumper, and make a blouse out of an old sheet or pillow case.

Use These Sources
For Boy's Clothing

Many women say that it's not as much fun sewing for little boys as for little girls, but have you seen how mannish clothing for the latter can be made? It's fun to make, too, but you'll have to try for tailored effects.

If you have old corduroy drapes or bathrobe around, see what you can salvage for overalls and a short loose jacket. Use real man-type tailoring for the garments, and you'll be surprised at the happy results.

Those short overalls for the beach can be made from plain shirts like solid blue or gray; they even can be made from some of your old checked house dresses as they require only about a yard and a quarter to one half of material.

Don't trim them except with a contrasting colored binding tape or

Knit Sharkskin

Fabric news is being made right now with this tricot knit sharkskin molded into a soft, feminine classic type dress. This new fabric made of Avisco rayon yarns combines the appearance of crisp sharkskin with the draping qualities of rayon jersey. It will not stretch lengthwise or crosswise. brick brace and keep them excessively simple.

Denim usually gets pretty hard wear if Dad or older brother has used it, so if you're making overalls or pants from that material it's a good idea to buy it new.

You can, however, use old white shirts or sheets or pillow cases for making shirts. Use a pattern and don't attempt to cut down to size using the old shirt.

Woolens can be used for making pants provided you refreshen the material, clean and rip it open, then recut, using a pattern suitable to the child.

Clothes for Toddlers
Should Be Sturdy

Although you may sew a very fine seam by hand, it's a good idea to plan to use a sewing machine when you make things for youngsters. Their clothing takes hard wear and tear as well as frequent laundering, and machine stitching is the only means by which the clothing can be made to stand up.

When making boys' clothing, use flat fell seams as this will enable you to give it a more tailored look. It's a good idea to stitch pockets twice on clothes that will receive the really hard wear and laundering, such as denim overalls.

Decorative patches are used for overalls on both boys' and girls' clothing, particularly at the knees. Select something really decorative such as a bunny, dog or kitten face and you'll find the knees will not wear out so quickly.

Don't make clothing too large because children's growing discourages you. They won't be comfortable. You can, however, make big hems on girls' dresses and let out cuffs for the pants and overalls.

The older the child and the more strenuous his activity, the sturdier the fabric selected for him or her should be. If you have a boy who engages in sports or plays out of doors a great deal, choose the most durable of materials for his clothing.

Be Smart!

A veritable dream fabric is batiste, so wonderfully sheer and almost silklike in its softness, in pastel pink or blue and white, mostly white. No wonder then that in a season when it is one of the hit fabrics, it's being used for some of the most exquisite nighties and matching negligees.
